

Lanigan & Lanigan Becomes Bankruptcy and Foreclosure Haven for Businesses, Families 35-Year Law Firm a Welcome Resource to Floridians Battling Tough Economy

Winter Park, Fla. (Sept 25, 2011) – Florida’s housing market and unemployment nominates the state economy as one of the nation’s worst. But Lanigan and Lanigan, a law firm with 35 years of bankruptcy, foreclosure and mortgage workout practice works with panicked Central Florida businesses and individuals to find home- and business-saving solutions.

“Calm down, there are causes, there are remedies and no matter how stressed out you are it’s never as bad as you think it is,” said partner Eric A. Lanigan. “Your case is unique and not like any other business, friend or family member’s situation. There are options based on what you want to do and your finances which tell you what you need to do.”

Lanigan and Lanigan is a business and civil litigation, bankruptcy, foreclosure, mortgage workout and securities and investment losses law practice. Eric and Roddy Lanigan review and consult with many, many people at all income levels who are looking for resolution to overwhelming debt and foreclosure suits.

“From CEOs to teachers to airline pilots, builders, small business owners, heads of families to single people...the one thing that they all have in common: it’s the economy,” said partner Roddy Lanigan who holds a master’s in economics history from the University of Cambridge and a Fellow of the Cambridge Overseas Society, a scholarship sponsored by the Prince of Wales.

“The bad economy has spared no industry and no demographic group,” Roddy said. “As a result of the economic downturn people are suffering in all walks of life.”

The Lanigans have honest conversations with clients about their financial situations and outlooks. Debt and income levels determine what options there are to save a business from going under, or whether a family files a Chapter 7 or a Chapter 13 bankruptcy, or if foreclosure can be stopped.

Lawyers Eric Lanigan and Roddy Lanigan bring 35 years and four years respectively of legal practice to clients through the law firm of Lanigan & Lanigan, P.L. The Lanigans are committed to helping clients achieve results through aggressive representation with a personal touch.
